

Daylight Savings Time begins Sunday

This Saturday most people will remember to move clocks ahead one hour. A few will forget and will catch up later. Life will go on with every day, every meal, and every appointment, starting one hour earlier than it otherwise would have.

God is on the move. Most people are not aware that He has moved His clock ahead; a few will discover the move and catch up later. Life will go on with every day, every meal, every appointment, starting one God-hour earlier..... many folks will arrive after the dust has settled and God has moved on again. Let us not be among them who are arriving at the place that God has just left. God is on the move; let us stay current with the move of God.

Throughout history, God has been active within and among those individuals who were sensitive and obedient to His voice. From the ancient patriarchs to the present, God has revealed Himself and His will to those relatively few who sought to know Him. Of course, the multitudes built religious monuments and creeds around His activities among the few, but the big stories of history are about God and the few who listened and obeyed.

When we read the list of the saints recorded in Hebrews eleven, it is about the few who heard and obeyed God. These were the people of God – the people of faith. These were the people who “knew their God and did exploits.” [Dan.11:32]

God introduced the New Covenant declaring that He would “pour out His Spirit upon all flesh” so that “...they shall all know Me, from the least of them to the greatest”. Of course, God did what He said He would do. He sent His Spirit to indwell “all flesh”, but immediately, the mind-centered religion-pushers, began to persecute the spiritually alive Spirit-following believers. Even now, two thousand years later, Christianity is largely made up of religious people following various creeds rather than believers following the voice of their Shepherd. What was supposed to be a Spirit movement for “all flesh” has largely become just another mind-centered creed-driven religion.

If a new book of Hebrews were to be written today, it would be about the relatively few people in the last two thousand years who heard and obeyed God. Certainly, there would still be 'seven thousand' unknowns who had not bowed the knee, but the book would contain only a relatively few who were hearing and following the Lord. The others would be busy building arks totally unaware that God is drying up sea-beds. Thousands of others would be building monuments to the latest revelation while God with a few listeners would be moving forward - building of His kingdom.

And – let's face it - we ALL HAVE THAT SAME PROBLEM! While we may hear a new directive from the Shepherd, we tend to interpret it in light of yesterdays patterns. Or at best, we may make it an addendum to other ancient or more recent but well-loved creeds. Meanwhile religion is always close at hand to modify or quench the call of God. Since Abraham walked with God, religious spirits have continuously attempted to interfere with every one of God's children in an effort to rob them of that vital ongoing relationship for which they were designed.

So, as you set the clock ahead this Saturday, take a moment to tune in to the now-voice of God. The ONLY way to keep in step with God and His will is to be tuned in as a way of life. This has always been His plan in providing for the 'new birth'. Nothing else works.

And.... I think that He will be on Daylight Savings Time this coming Sunday.

Super blessings to-ya...

Love,

George
